Something to consider

Paying only one deductible for any one loss will save you money. If you had separate policies for each piece of property, such as one for your auto and another for your home, you would typically pay separate deductibles.

If your insurance needs are minimal, you might want to consider individual policies like:

Car, boat, or RV insurance to protect you when you're on the road or at the marina.

Landlord's rental dwelling insurance, if you own and rent out income property.
